GET READY FOR CITY ELECTION TO BE HELD ON APRIL 10TH

Kreiss and Ryan Will Be Candidates But Will Have Opposition to Re-Election

The municipal election takes place on April 10 and the last day to register for this election is March 10, just a month hence. Up to date there have been less than 500 voters registered in Redwood City.

The terms of Trustees George Kreiss and M. E. Ryan expire April 10. They will seek re-election. Their opponents are grooming two candidates to be pitted against them. The coming contest wil no doubt be interesting. Every voter should register in order to take a hand and have a voice in the election.

JAPANESE KIDNAPER ENDS TROUBLES BY SUICIDE

Yoshiki Tsutsui, alias Y. Yamamoto, confined at the county jail for the past two months on a charge of kidnaping, committed suicide late Wednesday night by cutting his throat with a razor, severing the jugular vein. He was a trusty at the prison. At about 10:30 that night Jailer Coleman about to retire heard a peculiar noise upstairs.

Rushing to the upper floor he discovered the Japanese lying in the stairway about to expire. Coleman rushed for medical assistance, but before the doctor arrived the Nipponese had passed on the Flowery Kingdom. The body was removed to the Redwood City Undertaking parlors. The remains will be cremated today. Tsutsuri was to have been deported today to his native land, so sooner than go home in disgrace he preferred to end all and to take his punishment in the other world.

Last December he kidnaped a charming Japanese girl and with a stolen automobile the pair sped to Los Angeles, where they were afterward caught and brought back. The girl was much devoted to her Japanese lover, but deserted him when he was charged with crime. She was an heiress, having been recently left $25,000 by an uncle. Another uncle was the cause of Tsutsuri's undoing. He hated the lad, for he had another man in view for the fair young Japanese girl. Tsuitsuri was 22 years old, a likable fellow and a good worker. He loved not wisely but too well.

COUNTY GETS POSSESSION OF LAND FOR BOULEVARD

Judge Buck on Wednesday, on affidavits, placed San Mateo county in possession of land sought to be condemned in the county for the Skyline boulevard. The matter of assessing the damages will be settled later.

Work on the boulevard may now proceed. The title of the suit brought is the county of San Mateo against Jacob Weiler, Kate Kavanaugh and Moses Kavanaugh and others. The county brought condemnation proceedings to secure a right of way for the boulevard that is to extend from San Francisco to Santa Cruz. Several of the land owners on the route objected to the amount allowed by the county and therefore would not give the right of way and tied up the progress of the work. Under the ruling of Judge Buck activities will now be renewed on the boulevard.

SENTENCE OF FOURTEEN YEARS FOR WADE, THE CHECK ARTIST

Prisoner Worked His Game In Burlingame, Redwood City and Other Nearby Cities

Deputy Sheriff James P. Coleman on Monday escorted Frank Wade to San Quentin, where he will serve from one to fourteen years for passing fictitious checks in various towns on the peninsula. He plead guilty on Monday and on that day, after bidding farewell to his devoted mother, was taken away to the state prison. Wade served overseas. After passing checks at Burlingame, San Mateo, Redwood City and Palo Alto he went to Menlo Park, where he passed a check on the Club Garage. He was shortly after nabbed by Traffic Officer James Logan, who very cleverly captured the young man after leaving the garage. The capture is a big feather in Logan's cap.

While at San Quentin Mr. Coleman was accosted by his old charge, William Hightower, who inquired after his acquaintances in Redwood City. Hightower is now at work in the jute mills. He is fat, looks fine and appears to be contented behind the gruesome walls of the prison.

Hightower, who is a baker by trade, was employed for a time in the bakery of the prison, but his bread was not up to standard and he was put into the jute mills.

SUPERIOR COURT DECISION GIVES CHAPPELL PROPERTY TO DR. ROSS

Contestant Defeated in Effort to Break Will of County Pioneer

Judge Buck yesterday decided the William G. Chappell will contest in favor of the proponents of the will. The contest was brought by J. H. Chappell of Salinas, a cousin of the deceased, on the ground of undue influence. He also alleged unsoundness of mind and that the will was not properly witnessed.

William G. Chappell was a pioneer of Menlo Park and a lifelong friend of Dr. J. L. Ross of this city. At his death he left his entire estate to the doctor. The property is valued at $15,000. It consists of cash in bank and valuable realty at Palo Alto and Menlo Park. By the decision the doctor will come into possession of the property very soon, as the estate is ready for distribution.

During the trial of the case a number of the old pioneers of Menlo Park who had known the deceased for many years testified as to the soundness of his mind. Ross & Ross appeared for the plaintiff in the action.

Proceedings of the Board of Supervisors

The board of supervisors met in regular sesison Monday. Supervisor MacBain said that a great many people in the county were under the impression that the general fund and the social service fund were broke. He wanted it understood that this was not the case. He then stated that in the last tax levy $80,000 had been provided for the construction of the Pescadero to San Cruz county line highway. It was now agreed by all the members of the board that a portion of this money be now used fo rthat work. He then made a motion, which was seconded by Supervisor Hickey, that $50,000 be taken from the general fund to carry out the above improvements, that the county engineer prepare plans and specifications and that the district attorney prepare the necessary resolutions tc legally take care of the matter. The motion carried on roll call, all the members voting in favor of it.

In connection with this action of the board Chairman Thompson explained that the $50,000 appropriation would not be all the money that is to be spent on the reconstruction of the coast side highway, but that additional money would be provided later.

Supervisor MacBain presented a resolution in the matter of the Dumbarton project calling on the supervisors of San Francisco to appoint a committee of three of their members to meet with a similar committee from this board, already named, the joint committee to suggest ways and means by which legal, financing and engineering problems in connection with the bridge project may be solved. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

In order to correct a wrong impression that seems to prevail, Supervisor MacBain announced that there is plenty of money in the general fund to take care of all the indigents of the county and that they will be taken care of.

An order from the superior court asking the board to provide 100 trial jurors to serve during the coming year was received. The members of the board will submit names from their respective diserict at the meeting on February 20.

A petition signed by Miss L. Goertzhain and other residents and taxpayers of what is known as the Selby lane and Atherton avenue district was presented by District Attorney Swart, representing the petitioners, asking for the formation of a sanitary district to be known as the "Fair Oaks Sanitary District," embracing generally all that territory lying between Atherton avenue on the south, Selby lane on the north, Alameda de las Pulgas avenue on the west and the Sweeny ranch on the east.

Mrs. W. E. LaDieu stated there was another petition on file calling for the formation of a sanitary district that would embrace part of the district included in the firstpetition and she asked that this second petition be read. Mr. Swart said that he would withdraw his petition for the tiem being in order to allow the second to be read.

This petition was signed by Mrs. W. E. LaDieu and other taxpayers and residents. It called for the formation of what is to be known as the "Washington Sanitary District" and is to include all that territory between the southern boundary line of Redwood City on the north, the Selby lane on the south, Alameda de las Pulgas avenue on the west and the bay on the east.

Mrs. LaDieu was sworn and testified as to the correct number of the names on the petition and the validity of the names of the signers. She next presented an order which was read by the clerk, caling for an election on Saturday, April 1, 1922, to vote on the question of forming the district, designating the Washington schoolhouse as the place for the election and naming the election officers. The election order was adopted.

The Goertzhain petition was supported by Dr. E. W. Westphal and M. A. Harris. The district attorney then presented an order calling for an election to vote on this petition Tuesday, March 7, at the office of the Redwood City Nursery.

Answering a question put by Supervisor Hickey, the district attorney said the board had no discretion in the matter but must call both elections, so the order was adopted.

Isabel Vallejo and other residents of Halfmoon Bay asked that the "Halfmoon Bay" Sanitary District" be organized, to include all the territory within the unicorporated town of Halfmoon Bay. John Machado, attorney for the petitioners, presented a map of the proposed district, together with an election order calling for an election March 14. It was adopted.

Alvin S. Hatch and 54 other residents of Halfmoon Bay asked that three fire commisioners be appointed to call an election to form a fire district. The request was granted and A. F. Joseph, A. S. Hatch and Charles L. Morgan were appointed.

Harr Wagner and others asked that lights be placed at Franklin and Elm avenue and at Corona and Main boulevard in the Motnara lighting district; also that thelights on Cedar street near the hotel site and on Buena Vista avenue be discontinued. The request was granted.

Joseph A. Azevedo, a prominent resident of Hafmoon Bay, has begun an action in the superior court, through his attorney, J. J. Bullock, for an interlocutory decree of divorce from his wife, Mary Azevedo, on the ground of extreme cruelty. The Azevedos were married in the county on February 11, 1920, and separated February 6, 1922, after a year eleven months and 25 days. They have no children and no community property. The complaint alleges that some time before their separation the defendants declared she did not love the plaintiff and only married him for his money.

Interlocutory Decrees

Judge Buck Thursday granted an interlocutory decree of divorce to Eda Gale from her husband, Milton Gale, who is serving a sentence of five years at San Quentin penitentiary on a statutory charge. He was sent up from this county on March 12, 1921. The couple was married for two years prior to Gale's conviction.

The court also granted a decree of divorce to Mary Weed from her husband, Arthur T. Weed. They were married a year and a half when the action was commenced. The plaintiff is the chief telephone operator at the base hospital at Menlo Park.

James T. O'Keefe represented both plaintiffs in court.

PENINSULA BOOSTERS HOLD BIG MEETING

The big boosters' meeting called by the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce at the court house last Saturday afternoon was largely attended and much enthusiasm was manifested throughout the deliberations of the gathering. The meeting was called to order by President F. K. Towne, who briefly outlined its objects. C. N. Kirkbride was then called to the chair and in a forceful address pointed out the posibilities of the peninsula with the help and co-operation of San Francisco. He urged upon San rFancisco to aid this county in the contemplated industrial development as is proposed by the chambers of the county. He said that the city should not seek to annex San Mateo county but should assist in building up the industries of the peninsula so that development would result in mutual benefit to both sections.

Supervisor Richard Welch of San Francisco on behalf of the San Francisco board said that annexation was a dead issue; that San Francisco had no idea of annexing this territory; all that the city desires is the co-operation of this county to develop the industrial possibilities of the peninsula that would benefit San Francisco.

Among the other speakers were H. A. Mason of San Francisco, L. P. Behrens of Redwood City, Supervisor Jesse Coleman of San Francisco, J. J. McGrath of San Mateo, R. H. K. Smith, manager of the chamber of commerce, Redwood City.

D. R. Stafford, C. M. Doxsee, C. G. Lambert, Guy P. Hull, D. W. Williams and President Frank K. Towne will constitute a committee to investigate the whole development scheme and report at a general meeting to be held at an early date to secure the endorsement of the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce.

The improvement proposed is the construction of a sea wall to reclaim 40,000 acres of marshland and to build the Dumbarton bridge.

SADDLE ROCK RESTAURANT MEN FINED TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS EACH

Heavy Penalties Imposed by Recorder Mansfield for Liquor Selling in Redwood City

For some time past the local police department has had under surveillance several parties who were openly violating the local Volstead ordinance. Detectives have been working in this locality for a month or more. On Wednesday night four arrests were made. Sufficient evidence was secured to convict them. The penalty prescribed by the ordinance is a maximum fine of $300 and a jail sentence of 90 days.

The men accused are John Genochio, Edward Bennett, Joe Deluchi and the Saddle Rock Restauraunt, L. Ducuing, proprietor.

Genochio, Deluchi and Ducuing entered pleas of guilty. Bennett will stand trial and will demand a jury to pass upon his guilt or innocence.

This is the second time the Saddle Rock Restaurant has been accused of bootlegging. The detectives who made the arrests are from San Francisco. They are under the direction of Chief of Police Collins, who worked with them.

Yesterday afternoon the three accused men appeared before Recorder Mansfield for sentence. They were each ordered to pay a fine of $200. All paid the money and went their ways, sadder but wiser men.

ANNEXATION DEAD

The annexation bugaboo that has hampered the progress of San Mateo county for many years has been buried and buried so deeply that the people of San Mateo county will not hear of it again. At the meeting held at the court house Saturday afternoon annexation was given a death blow from which it cannot recover. The gathering was called by the citizens of San Mateo county and San Francisco to discuss questions of vital interest to the development of the peninsula. Supervisor Richard Welch, voicing the sentiment of the people of San Francisco, declared in eloquent terms that the citizens of the city had no desire to annex the county of San Mateo, that was a dead issue; all that the people desire is to develop the peninsula and in so doing benefit the metropolis. He said that both counties must go hand in hand and work together for their mutual benefit. The industries of the west side of the bay must be developed, more factory sites must be established and more San Francisco people make their homes on the sunny hillsides of the county.

Charles N. Kirkbride of San Mateo spoke in a similar strain, pledging every support to San Francisco in the work contemplated.

Heretofore anything done by San Francisco for the development of the peninsula was looked upon by the people of the county as a move for annexation and therefore the county has not gone ahead as it should. The people of the county are naturally jealous of their territory and would not give it up without a strenuous struggle. For years they have fought anything that took the form of annexation. Now that the question is settled a new era has dawned for San Mateo county. With both neighbors working together there can be but one result, the mutual benefit of each.

The construction of the sea wall along the bay will reclaim 40,000 acres of land suitable for factory sites where thousands of working men may be employed. The construction of the Dumbarton bridge will bring treasures in the way of products from the fertile valley of San Joaquin through the county to San Francisco. San Mateo county will not only become an industrial center but its hills will be dotted with homes, its valleys inhabited by a contented and happy people. This may seem visionary, but if the people of San Mateo county and San Francisco work in harmony, co-operate and stand together the results will be far beyond human comprehension.

TRAIN SPEEDING

Agitation on the peninsula for an improved suburban service to and from San Francisco has secured a slight improvement, according to announcement made by the Southern Pacific Company. A new time card goes into effect tomorrow. It will reduce the time between Redwood City and San Francisco five or ten minutes on some trains. Few alterations are made in the time card, but the shorter time will be welcomed. All improvements in this particular must be worked out in a deliberate manner. Operating a big service requires that most changes be made gradually. That is something the company is trying to do.

But one change sought will be resisted obstinately by all peninsula people. They will never be willing to permit the company to put in a drawbridge on the line running this way, as proposed by some San Francisco interests. In the hearing on the subject held during the week it developed that one of the harbor commissioners is part owner of the lands that are to be benefited by the instalaition of the drawbridge. Naturally that has aroused the ire of opponents of the proposition. They are going to demand that the governor remove that official. They objete to the use of official position to advance private interests, rightly so. Whether the attempt will prove successful is yet to be determined.

After all, the only permanent solution of the rapid transportation problem for the peninsula is the elevation of the passenger lines and the building of a subway for freight lines. Every town along the line has a regulation that limits speed of trains within corporate limits. That is absolutely necessary with surface lines. No matter how well guarded the right of way may be, it is dangerous. Consequently the time limit for trains between San Francisco and peninsula towns cannot be reduced to any great extent while the tracks remain as at present. In time the peninsula region will have a tremendous population. Most of those who will have their homes down the line will be in business in the big city. It will be necessary for them to have very rapid transportation. Just as has been done in New York, Chicago and other large cities, the surface roads will be abolished for the regular suburban traffic. The passenger trains running on elevated roadways can go at any desired speed, limited only by the power of their equipment. Danger to pedestrians and to vehicular traffic is abolished. So the peninsula must be equipped in time. No doubt the Southern Pacific Company has had this idea in mind to a very limited extent. San Jose has decided that when the new pasesnger station is built the railroad must put its tracks on a different level from that of the street—either above or below. That is a beginning. Other towns will follow suit until there will be no more trains running on the surface. It is an expensive innovation, but a necessary one. The sooner it is accomplished the better it will be for all.

IMPORTERS WANT NO TARIFF

At the special tariff convention recently held in Washington under the auspices of the National Manufacturers' Association a number of articles manufactured in Germany and Austria were exhibited showing the fearful disparity in production costs of those articles in their countries of origin and in the United States. Appended to each of the exhibits was a photostat copy of a sales slip issued by the department store seling the particular article showing the price at which it was sold to the American consumer.

A pair of scissors purchased in the German market for 14 cents a pair was sold over the counter in this department store at $3. A German knife with ornamental handle, a pair of scissors folding in and a nail file, purchasable in the German market at 12 cents, was sold to the American purchaser over the counter at $8.50. Two thermos bottles were placed side by side. The German bottle was billed through the United States custom house at New York on a German invoice at 17 marks, which at the then rate of exchange was equal to 8½ cents American money. The duty on this type of bottle, its chief value being its metal case, was 20 per cent (foreign valuation), or 1.7 cents. Adding freight and other expenses, the laid down cost for the bottle in America was 12.2 cents. These bottles are sold by a subsidiary company of the importers, who operate a chain of stores in New York City, at 98 cents each. The American consumer paid a profit on these German bottle of about 800 per cent. A comparative American bottle manufactured by the American Thermos Bottle Company, with factories in Connecticut, New York and West Virginia, is put out at an average production cost of $1.01 and retails for $1.50. Under American valuation, with a duty rate of 60 per cent the landed cost of the German bottle would have been still below the American production cost.

A copy of a Budapest circular was shown in which the Hungarian house offered to print $10,000 circulars for the equivalent of $36 American money. The best price that could be made for similar work by a New York printing house was $293.50. "Wages are lower here than elsewhere, 15 times less than in London, 30 times less than in New York," declared the Budapest concern.

A glance at the import statistics of the United States department of commerce for the calendar year 1921 indicates that these foreign prices are not misstated. For instance, 632,164 dozen pocket knives imported last year were valued at $792,772——$1.25 a dozen, or about 10.5 cents each; 275,193 dozen razors and parts of, valuc at $515,418—$1.88 a dozen or less than 16 cents each; 591,785 dozen pairs of scissors and shears valued at $978,965—$1.66 a dozen, or less than 14 cents a pair. Thermos bottles are not separately stated; but reference may be made to the importation of 642,244 mantles for gas burners valued at $28,843, or 4.5 cents each; 691,763 gross of pencils and pencil leads valued at $413,647, or less than 60 cents a gross; 14,146,167 unblocked hats valued at $1,968,100, or less than 14 cents each, and so on down the line wherever quantities and values are indicated in the official statistics.

The argument of the American manufacturers, farmers, workingmen and all who so strongly advocate the American valuation plan is that to assess duties on such foreign values as these amounts to practically free trade and no consumer is getting the benefit of these low prices paid by the importers, who exact profits of from 200 to 1,000 per cent when they sell over their counters.

MERCHANT MARINE AID

President Harding has been giving much time recently to the consideration of plans for a merchant marine subsidy that will insure the permanent operation of an extensive shipping service under the American flag. He has been in frequent consultation with Chairman Lasker of the shipping board and it is understood that the two have practically completed a plan which will be recommended to congress. Among the features to which consideration has been given is a payment to be made to ship owners based on the customs collected, mail subventions on lines where it is desirable to secure regular service, other government contracts, and, perhaps, some legislation that will shift imigrant traffic to American lines. If the latter should be adopted it would be much easier to control imimgration under the restrictions as to numbers.

THE REFUND COMMISSION

The refund bill as passed by the senate authorizes the creation of a commiison composed of the secretary of the treasury and four others to be appointed by the president with the aprpoval of the senate, which commission shall have authority to negotiate with the representatives of other nations and agree upon a plan of funding the war obligations owed to this country. The principal limitations placed upon the powers of the commisson are that the bonds accepted must be payable in not to exceed 25 years and must bear not less than 4 1-4 per cent interest. The bonds of one nation canont be accepted in lieu of the debt of another.

The difference between intellectuality and intelligence is the difference between knowing and knowing how.

Do you remember "The Prince Chap"? It was a great picture, but it does not compare with

DON'T MISS IT

THIS CHILD ACTRESS LOVES

Thomas Meighan, Says Juvenile in

"A PRINCE THERE WAS"

We have all read of the small boy faling in love with his pretty school teacher, or of the more modern case of the youngster who grows desperate over his hopeless love for some beautiful prima donna or screen star.

Now we have the case of the child actress in love with the star.

Little Carlotte Jackson was chosen more than a year ago to play the child role in a William de Mille production, "The Prince Chap." In this story the child likened the big, kindly artist who adopted her upon the death of her mother to a good prince in the fairy tales, and as she grew to womanhood, came to the realization that her love for him was not confined to the love of a child for its protector or guardian.

And now in "A Prince There Was" Mr. Meighan's new Paramount starring vehicle, coming to the Sequoia Theater, Redwod Cityo, Monday and Tuesday, February 13 and 14, little Charlotte again plays the child role and again likens the rich and handsome man whom she asks to help her friend, a young writer, to a fairy prince, so sumptuous are his quarters and so kindly his manner. Since playing this new role, however, Charlotte has revealed a secret.

"I am in love with Tommy," confided this child of seven years.

Charlotte regrets that her hero has so much the start of her in age, but declares, "When I grow up, if he hasn't got a wife, I'm going to marry him."

So anyone who is cherishing any such hopes might as well despair, for Charlotte has already put in her bid, and that settles it!

Duck Hunting Reminiscences

By CLAUDE FOX

Story No. 42

For some years after the moonlight shoot participated in by myself and Will McDonald there was no perceptible decrease in the large numbers of the feathered inhabitants of the marshland and in company with various associatees, many of whom have now passed away, I continued to bring in big bundles of the birds each successive year, upon which, at that time there was no limit. Wonderful stories were related of the McEvoy boys from here and the members of the Murray family from Menlo Park killing from 150 to 200 widgeon in a single night shoot on the old Cooley ranch, which I had not the slightest reason to doubt, as all those boys were excellent shot, familiar with the habits of the grain-feeding webfoots, and when one considers that very often from six to eight members of those families constituted one of of their duck hunting parties such a shoot was nothing out of the ordinary when an average was struck between the total number killed and the boys engaged in the sport.

These young men were all older than myself and consequently I naturally sought companions nearer my own age, and hence it was that the Cullen boys—Ed, Jim and Con—together with Fred Stalter and Still Sears, were more often with me.

Upon one occasion that I remember well, because it was a bitterly cold night, I was accompanied by the late W. H. "Billy" Hanson, an uncle of Pauline and Laura Hanson and Mrs. George Poole of this city, and we brought in a string that night that was fit for the eyes of any epicure. Billy was a crack shot, both with the scattergun and rifle, but I had never known him to have had much experience in moonlight duck hunting, which is far different and more difficult than pulling the birds down out of the sky during the daylight hours. He wished to get some ducks to take with him to San Francisco the following day and looked me up to go with him. I informed him that it was going to be an exceedingly cold night and my experience had been that the birds did not move much in such weather. As he was very anxious to secure the ducks we made a try of it.

Down to the east of where the spic and span chicken ranches of Runnymede now operate, close to the edge of the marshland, was a low flat lying piece of ground nearly a quarter of a mile square, surrounded on three sides by willows. The surface of this field was dotted with numerous depressions into which the rain water had collected and where the Cullen boys and myself had killed quite a number of birds on previous occasions. Knowing that the grain fields would furnish difficult shooting that night by reason of the blue, cloudless sky which renders a flock of ducks quite hard to see, I decided to pay our respects to the "swamp," as the place was called. Not anticipating much of a flight and expecting my companion would "freeze out" early in the evening, as the air was crisp and chilly, I figured on being home by 10 o'clock at the latest. It was another case when I learned something new concerning the habits of wild duck life.

Much to my surprise I found that "Billy" Hanson didn't mind the cold, biting atmosphere half as much as I thought he would. In fact I was the first to pay any marked degree of attention to the unmistakable coolness of the night air.

Saying he would call for me at 2:30 that afternoon I went home to prepare for the trip. Promptly on time he was at the house. Down the San Francisquito creek road we drove until we reached the last patch of willows before coming into view of the old "Wilson Landing," from which hay and grain were shipped in considerable quantities in the early days. Blanketing and tying the horse, we climbed through the rickety fence and started northward toward the "swamp."

Mr. Hanson was some 50 yards in the lead, as I was detained arranging some shells in my hunting coat. Sudenly I heard him shoot. As the sun was still up I concluded he had knocked over a jackrabbit, which were quite plentiful in that locality; again he fired and before I finally caught up to him he had shot seven times and was the happiest fellow you would want to meet, for he had killed six English snipe, which he had flushed in the low lying cow pastures. Now when you see a man kill six out of seven of those saucy, fleet winged little beauties you want to sit up and take notice. That fellow is some shot with the scattergun. From thenceforth I always had a great deal of respect for the accuracy of Billy Hanson's aim when he pulled the trigger of a shotgun.

We soon reached our destination and fixing up a comfortable seat for my companion within easy range of a large puddle where tracks indicated that ducks had been visiting recently, I went up the swamp a hundred yards and prepared my self for a cold, frosty night, with a chilly blue sky as a background for what I concluded would not be a very productive expedition. The sun sank to rest behind the western mountains and the full moon rose in all its glory just as twilight was approaching. It was just at that time, halfway between sundown and dusk, when a duck hunter's eyes are alert for the first oncoming dark objects that cause your nerves to tingle with excitement, when I spotted a pair of mallard leading in from the marsh coming toward me for what looked like a fine shot. Sudenly they changed their course and headed for my partner. I did not wish to call out to him for fear of frightening the birds, but he was not slow to get into action and the way he doubled that pair up, one with each barrel, was worth going miles to see. The last dying streaks of daylight faded away and we were left in the light glow of the moon which shimmered down on the small puddles of water scattered over the swamp. The birds were not working well and by 8 o'clock we only had eight or nine between us. It was growing cold and I expected every minute Billy would call out it was time to quit, but not he. There was no "freeze out" with him, at least not for the present. I found out he was a "stayer" of the old school of duck hunters. Nine o'clock came and we had only three or four more birds to our credit. As the hour of ten approached there was a change in the flight.

Up in the Cooley fields there had been some shooting, but nothing compared to what there would have been had the weather been milder and the sky flecked with white clouds. Ducks began circling overhead and we were both shooting more rapidly. It was a pleasant sound to hear them flopping into the puddles in different parts of the swamp. The truth suddenly dawned on me. The feeding time was over and the large, handsome widgeon were coming in for water.

"Stay with it, Billy!" I called out.

"You bet I will!" he sang back.

In half an hour's time we had killed 18 more and they were coming about as fast as we could handle them under the blue sky unless they dropped down in the water in front of us. Laying the ducks on their backs, with the white breasts upward did the trick for us again that night. Eleven o'clock passed unnoticed by either and while the air was good and chilly, no discomfort was complained of. Two more mallard fell to my partner's gun, but none of that species seemed to favor my location. As it neared 12 we heard some of the boys who had been shooting up in the fields coming down to partake of the duck picnic being pulled off in the swamp. I knew that with four more shooting around us the interference would result in few being killed by anyone, so when I called out that it was time to go there was no objection on my companion's part.

Gathering up my lucks I found that my strap contained 25. Billy Hanson had slipped one over on me that night, but I had no cause to be ashamed of my marksmanship, for I was shooting with a man who knew the game thoroughly, had an eye as keen as anyone for moonlight duck shooting and was an expert wing shot. He had killed 34, of which four were mallard, and if ever a man drove back to Redwood City perfectly satisfied with the results of a moonlight duck hunt in the good old days when that pleasurable pastime was duck shooting, spelled in capital letters, it was he who was my companion on that cold, frosty night, W. H. "Billy" Hanson of Redwood City.

One thing that makes the tired business man tired is being made the victim of a new "drive" about every week.

JACKIE COOGAN LEARNED DISH WASHING AT HOME

Jackie Coogan could earn his living as a butler, cook or dishwasher.

He demonstrates this in "My Boy," an Associated First National attraction which is coming to the Sequoia Theater for an engagement of two days on Monday and Tuesday, February 20 and 21. Making himself at home in the domicile of the crusty old sea captain without an invitation—in fact, much against the wishes of the head of the house—he quickly shows that he is worth his salt even if he is only six years of age.

The captain had a guest that night—another salt water crony—and Jack took it upon himself to prepare the meal for the three of them. This he did in such shipshape form, despite his youth, that the old captain made a vow that he would reconsider turning the boy out of doors. Never had he been so comfortable.

Jackie showed his ingenuity when it came time to wash the dishes. Making a quick mental calculation of the steps it would require to convey all the dishes to the sink he solved the problem by pushing the entire table over to the washing facilities and quickly finished the job.

"My Boy" is one of the most appealing stories ever filmed, containing delightful humor and touching pathos that grips the heart. Jackie Coogan can never be forgotten as are a bad citizen it will.

MENLO PARK NEWS

On Tuesday evening, January 31, the newly organized club known as the Companions Card Club met for the first time at the home of Mrs. A. W. Gale. Refreshments were served and the prizes were won by Mrs. J. T. O'Keefe, C. Neighorn, Miss Helen Strong and Roland Midgley. The club has a membership of 24 and meetings are planned to be held twice each month. Mrs. John MacBain will be hostess to teh next party to be held February 14.

The management of the Menlo Park Theater is to be congratulated for the comfort with which it surrounds its patrons. The cold and snappy evenings are forgotten, once the patron is seated in the building with its warmth, good ventilation and cozy cushioned chairs. The carefully selected pictures are enjoyed by pa, ma and the childen.

John M. Neuman, father of John E. Neuman, who maintains a beautiful home in Menlo Oaks and who is claim agent for the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, passed away following a long illness at his home in San Francisco last Friday. Mr. Neuman was connected up until a short time ago with the United States immigration bureau at Angel Island. He was a man of sterling worth, upright and honest and beloved by all who knew him. He was 75 years old at the time of his demise. Mr. Neuman is survived by four children, two daughters and two sons.

See "Western Hearts," shown in the Menlo Park Theater this evening. Tomorrow evening "The Invisible Power." Don't fail to see these all star productions.

Miss Sarah Frey, formerly a resident of Redwood City, but for some years living at Montara, where she was engaged in raising Toggenberg goats, has purchased about two acres of land from the Felton Company in the Dominga tract fronting on the highway. Miss Frey will engage in the same business here. She is a niece of the late Benjamin Rankin and is well known on the peninsula. She was a welfare worker in San Francisco for many years before she moved to Montara.

The beautiful Richard Girvin residence at Atherton was sold during the week to Mr. Weil. It is one of the show places of Atherton.

P. G. Lacey has returned to his home here after having received treatment at the Quinnivere Sanitarium, Redwood City, for a stroke of paralysis he suffered two ewoks ago.

Representatives of the state highway commisison established temporary scales on Santa Cruz avenue on Thursday and took the weight of every truck that passed up an down the highway. Drivers of those that were overweight were sent to the justice of the peace. There were quite a number that exceeded the weight allowed by law.

Next Thursday evening the members of Menlo Parlor, N. S. G. W., will give a smoker in their hall to prospective members, friends and others. These functions are to be given every month for the benefit of the members. The instalaltion of officers is likely to take place at the Thursday meeting.

The total rainfall for the season has been 8.10 inches as against 15.74 inches at this time last year. The rainfall is still below normal for the season.

The Menlo Park boys and girls for the first time in their precious lives enjoyed snowballing on the Portola hills back of Menlo Park. They made snow men and threw snowballs to their hearts' content. This is the first time in over thirty years that snow has fallen on the foothills. The youngsters certainly did enjoy the snow.

On account of the overcrowded condition of the William Warren School a large building will have to be erected very soon. The owner of the school is preparing plans for a large building to cost $50,000. Work on the structure will begin some time during the spring. The institution is one of the best private schools for boys in the state.

Announcement is made of the intention of Leon F. Douglass to erect a studio here, where he will use the moving picture camera he has been working on for five years. Several experts have stated it will revolutionize the whole business. The studio will be erected on the Douglass property across the highway from the home of Mrs. Robert McNally. It will be a large and substantial building. Work on the structure is to begin in May.

Plans for the new buildings at the base hospital are being rushed at Washington, 40 persons being busy with them in the supervising architect's office. It is the intention to offer the plans for contractors' bids on March 4 and to have construction work begin about June 1. A number of changes have been made in the plans since the original sketches were drawn, accordingto Dr. Wheate. It has been found advisable to sacrifice more of the old buildings. The new hospital building, which is to cost $1,400,000, will be devoted to the care of nervous and mental patients. It is the plan of the government to rehabilitate the present temporary buildings for use by the tuberculosis patients until another appropriation shall have been made by congress for a special building for that purpose.

Through the untiring efforts of Senator Shortridge another appropriation of $1,400,000 is to be secured for the institution. A telegram from the senator yesterday stated:

"Prospects favorable for government building hospital at Camp Fremont double the size originally recommended."

"This is the first intimation we have had of the proposed extension of Camp Fremont hospital plans," said Dr. W. T. Harrison, "but it is nevertheless very acceptable news. If the new institution is built on plans calling for double the originally proposed plant it will mean a 1,000 bed hospital and will more nearly meet our requirements."

ANOTHER NEW TEACHER FOR THE HIGH SCHOOL

She taught recently in the Chico high school, but resigned the position to come with her relatives to Menlo Park. Miss Wolters is a Stanford graduate. There are now 345 pupils attending the high school.

NATALE GETS FIFTY YEARS

Natale Chimenti of Daly City, who was sentenced to San Quentin January 10 on a charge of rape, will probably be behind prison bars for the balance of his life, as his indeterminate sentence was fixed at 50 years by the prison board at its meeting, according to notice received at the court house. He does not understand English and following his sentence said he pleaded guilty on the understanding that he would not be sent to prison but would be sent to Italy.

Pointed Paragraphs

Almost any man can be a terror in his home, but it's different uptown.

Many a man has won fame and fortune by sitting still and saying nothing when every instinct urged him to cry out his opinion.

The old-time parents took the saying "Youth will be served" to mean that youth should be served at the second table.

The youth who has "money sense" may end his days in a palace if he wishes to have a palace, but if he have that kind of sense he won't want one.

An automobile is like an ill tempered child—likely to "act up" in public and be good natured when nobody is around.

If a man could be at his best when circumstances are at their worst, he would be able to change the circumstances.

If he feels flattered at being named on committes, he's still young.

An automobile runs on gas, but you're not an automobile.

When you tell a tightwad to "thaw out" he gets all warmed up.

The world is growing better. Even blonde stenographers rarely chew gum at their work nowadays.

It's poor business to be a good fighter if you're not a good finisher.

A cynical world doesn't really love a lover so much, but it has a good deal of fun out of him.

You say "I wish" a hundred times where once you say "I will."

If you find yourself attending to other people's business it's a good sign they have more business to attend to than you have.

You never knew a crank who did not have a face that looked like it had been screwed up with a monkey wrench.

A humorist knows that it isn't hard to be funny, but it's hard to make others think he's funny.

Some people are buying automobiles now for self-defense. It's getting too dangerous to be a pedestrian.

If there were no fools wise men would be without honor.

The man who boasts that he is "self-made" is not half finished.
